What's New in the ES Auto Shutdown Scheduler?

The program will help you to prevent annoying situations such as frozen screens, or applications not responding to commands. The program can prevent this by scheduling a shutdown time for the computer based on how long the machine has been idle. Users can also enter a shutdown time on their own (for system maintenance, cleaning, or whatever they may want) for machines that do not have a scheduler running. ## Usage To start the application, use the following command from the command line: "" EASYASES-Auto-Scheduler.exe "" ## What does it do? -The program is an executable which requires a single parameter: a shutdown time in hours. -This application creates an executable which runs in the background. Once the executable is created, it will run in the background and continue to run until manually shutdown. -It will monitor how long the computer has been idle. If the time has been idle for the configured amount of time, it will shutdown the computer. -The application creates an executable which can be run when the computer restarts as well. -When started the application will run and exit automatically when the computer shuts down. ## Install -Right click on the file and select install. ## Requirements -Windows XP or newer. -Internet Explorer 5 or newer -JavaScript -Internet Information Server -JRE 1.5 or newer ## License Copyright (c) 2003, 2007 by Albert Jung, DCC, FWF Licensed under the GNU General Public License, version 2.0. The present invention relates to an exhaust-gas turbocharger for internal combustion engines and more particularly, to an exhaust-gas turbocharger for an internal combustion engine which is provided with an exhaust-gas recirculation (EGR) passage and a charge-air cooling passage. The exhaust-gas turbocharger which is well known in the art for raising the power output of an internal combustion engine by compressing the air fed to the engine for supercharging (boosting) is now widely used and serves to raise the pressure of the air fed to the engine so that the air becomes high in temperature. The compressed air thus high in temperature is fed to the engine to be used for combustion, so that it is required to cool the high-temperature air fed to the engine. It is well known in the art that the compressor of an exhaust-gas turbocharger is also used as a turbo-motor, which is called a turbo-generator, and this turbo-generator can generate electric power by rotating the compressor at a high speed in the exhaust-gas recirculation (EGR) passage which is provided for recirculating the exhaust gas into the intake pipe so as to reduce the NOx (nitrogen oxides) discharged from the engine
